

Personal Learning Profile Summary

Congratulations! You've completed your Personal Learning Profile (PLP). Below are your unique results which will be used to support you throughout your study and guide you along the path to achieving your desired study outcome.

Profile categories

Academic Drive

Definition: Students driven by academic success are more likely to achieve their goals.

You are likely to excel in your academic journey because your commitment, effort, and determination are all driven by your desire to reach your full potential. You will find our Referencing tools helpful in completing your assessments with ease and will benefit from retaining assignment feedback and applying each experience to your next course.

Personal Value

 Focus area

Definition: Students who enjoy and see value in what they are studying are more likely to persist and succeed.

You are most successful in your studies when you are enjoying what you are learning, which keeps you interested and motivated. Most students are intrinsically motivated when activities are new, pleasant, exciting, and challenging. We highly recommend you start by registering with Career Hub and sign up for the 'Define your goals' workshop. You will leave the workshop with a personalised development plan and an idea of what co-curricular activities including workshops, RMIT Creds and experiences, would be most suit to you.

Goal Alignment

Definition: Students who feel their online degree is directly connected to their career and life goals are more likely to persist and achieve success.

You are confident about your future and that your course will get you to where you want to go. A resource you may be interested in is our Future Edge Journey which will build job-ready skills for your career and help give you an edge in the job market by developing the capabilities employers are looking for!

Time Management

☆ Strength

Definition: Students who can prioritise and self-manage in online learning are more likely to achieve success in their studies.

You're already a time management superstar! This means you are well versed in prioritising, which will allow you to remain cool-headed while managing competing priorities. While this is a great skill to have while managing your studies, don't forget to make use of your Canvas Calendar to plan out your tasks.

Accessing Support

Definition: Students who make use of the relevant study resources and support systems available are more likely to persist with their studies and achieve success.

You are well versed in learning independently which is a great skill to have while studying online. You also have access to some amazing resources to use throughout your study. Our resource repositories such as the Learning Lab, will allow you to track down any specific resources you may need.

Using Technology

☆ Strength

Definition: Students who are comfortable using digital platforms can quickly adapt to online study and achieve their goals.

You're already a pro when it comes to using digital platforms in your day-to-day life. You strongly believe that online learning tools are significant in developing effective, self-directed learning skills. Take advantage of RMIT's full suite of software and applications for free using your RMIT student email address. You can find the list of these systems through the Access to RMIT systems page.

Definition: Students who remain motivated and focused throughout their studies are more likely to meet their long-term goals.

Sometimes it can be difficult to stay motivated and focused, particularly when it feels like no progress is being made in the short term. It's great that this is an area you're moderately experienced in! You'll benefit from focusing on your long-term goals and continuously looking for ways of working that can increase your chances of success. Take advantage of resources available to you such as Studying efficiently to continuously improve your study strategies.
